CHOLERA SITUATION GROWS MORE GRAVE.*Government Takes a Hand at New York Immigrant Station.*R. DOTY IS UNDER FIRED*Gravity of Conditions Accentuated by Inroads Upon Discipline Because of Alleged Tammany Plot to Land Big Plum.

United Press Telegram.
NEW YORK, July 17.—"So serious is the cholera situation at this port considered that experts from the Public Health and Marine Hospital service at Washington reached here today to assist in keeping the plague under control. Fifteen cases have been reported on Swinburne Island and two deaths occurred during the past 24 hours. A dozen other victims are so seriously ill they may not recover. The victim who died today was a 16 year old Indian boy who arrived here on the Moltke two weeks ago. The body was immediately cremated.

The row between Health Officer Doty and the persons who have "herded" that immigrants are being indiscriminately treated has reached a climax and it is asserted the efficiency of the local quarantine station is seriously impaired. Charles N. Butler, who is here investigating conditions for the purpose of reporting to Governor Dix, is expected to recommend Dr. Doty's removal from office. Dr. Doty insists he is being persecuted by a coterie of Tammany politicians who want his job, one of the richest in the State service, for a word of i.e. Tiger.

All of the steerage passengers coming in on the Moltke and the Porvania are in the observation ward on Hoffman's Island. The 16 cases of actual cholera now on Swinburne Island came from the Moltke. Both steamers are from Italian ports.

Hereafter the detention period for Italian immigrants will be doubled. The greatest danger is from cholera carriers, who retain the disease in their intestinal organs and fail to develop it in the usual time. Because of this it has been decided that even though those quarantined do not appear to have the disease, specimens from the intestine will be taken and bacteriological examinations made before the subjects are discharged from quarantine.

Busy Times Ahead for Town Council

The regular session of Town Council tomorrow evening promises to be prolonged. It was stated today that a score or more citizens would make their appearance to protest against the conditions of newsmen in different parts of town. The residents of East Main street have not forgotten the flood of a few days ago when water backed over the pavement and made things decidedly unpleasant for a time. The Eighth street delegation is also expected to voice a protest.

Besides several problems Council is scheduled to open bids for the new fire house. Whether the contract is awarded remains to be seen. The bids are to be read and it will then be possible to determine whether the new building can be erected at a reasonable figure.

The establishing of grades on several West Side streets will also consume considerable time, it is expected. It is seldom possible to establish grades that satisfy all property owners and if there are protests entered against Borough Engineer Hogg's suggestions it will not be surprising to the Councilmen.

Freight Wreck Delays Traffic

A freight wreck at Lavena caused a delay to traffic on the Pittsburgh division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad last evening. The business limited was held out for sometime. It was necessary to detour passenger trains over the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie tracks for several hours.

This morning shifting engine No. 2337 left the rails near the Youngstown bridge. All the wheels except the rear trucks of the tender hit the ties. It took several hours to get the shifter on the tracks.

WHIPPED WIFE WITH STRAP; ADELAIDE MINER FORGIVEN.

Mike Shedlak Did Not Like Arrangements His Better Half Made and His Actions Brought Him Into West Side Squire's Court.

For beating his wife and threatening her life, Mike Shedlak of Adelaide, was arrested Saturday by Constable William Holland of Dunbar township, and was given a hearing Saturday afternoon before Squire P. M. Butterman of the West Side. An information charging Shedlak with aggravated assault and battery and cruelty of the peace was made by his wife, Mary Shedlak.

Mrs. Shedlak was twice married, had two children to her first husband, both of whom had been making their home at the Shedlak home. Shedlak refused to keep the children, and on Thursday Mrs. Shedlak with the two children came to Connellsville and secured a place as a domestic for the girl, who is about 15 years old. The boy remained home with Mrs. Shedlak. Friday morning when Shedlak returned home from work and learned that the boy had returned to him, Mrs. Shedlak and beat her with a strap, such as is used by miners. Large welts were all over her body and she requested the attendance of a physician. Mrs. Shedlak appeared against her husband at the hearing and finally decided to forgive Shedlak, her husband, and they both returned to their home at Adelaide. Shedlak made all kinds of promises in order to be left off.

Chief Clerk Murrie is Returned Here

Chief Clerk A. K. Murrie of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company has been retransferred to Connellsville after having been sent to Vandergrift, according to an unofficial rumor. It is stated that Mr. Murrie has been directed to remain at Homestead indefinitely.

Inference is drawn from this order that the company contemplates resuming operations at Homestead sometime in the near future. Mr. Murrie was sent to Vandergrift but a few weeks ago and from the report that he was reassigned to Homestead has caused the inference that the mill here is not to remain idle for a great length of time.

Prosecutes Smith for Cutting Affray

Special to The Courier.
UNIONTOWN, July 17.—County Detective Alex McBeth this morning made information against William Smith, a negro, charging him with felonious cutting. He was arrested by Constable J. L. McCann at Coolspring Saturday night.

It was alleged Smith stabbed Sam Gusman, who is in the Untownton hospital. Gusman is in a serious condition. The men had a fight Saturday night at Coolspring.

Two Operations at Hospital.

Two operations were performed this morning at the Cottage State hospital. Both patients were from South Connellsville. Miss Gertrude Adams was operated on for a hernia. Miss Adams is 18 years old. Mrs. Ida Shank of South Connellsville, aged 37 years, was operated on for a growth on the side of her face.

Wm. Percy Out.

William Percy, who met with an accident while at work in the warehouse of the Tri-State Candy Company on last Friday afternoon, was able to return to work this morning.

Gets a Promotion.

John Malone, head clerk and bookkeeper at the Mount Pleasant plant of the Pittsburgh Brewing Company, is to be the new superintendent of the company's latrine plant, succeeding James N. Hefford.

Merchants today made a vigorous denial of the statement that they had prevailed upon the Baltimore head-quarters of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad not to issue pay checks here on Saturday. The merchants who talked this morning declare they had never presented such a proposition to the general offices of the railroad; did not know of any merchant who had and, further, did not believe such a request could receive consideration from the officials higher up.

The pay checks for the Connellsville and Pittsburgh divisions are being issued today. Some of the railroad men started the report that the delay this month was occasioned because the merchants here wanted to prevent pay day from falling on Saturday.

The pay this month is of ordinary size. Traffic on the Baltimore & Ohio during June was not particularly heavy and overtime did not eat much of a figure.

Seaton, who was employed as an engineer at the Somet-Solvay plant at Dunbar, had come from work at three o'clock and in company with one of his fellow workers went to the river, which had been their custom during the hot spell. They were in the water about three-quarters of an hour when Seaton's partner, Charles Ways, who was about eight feet away from him heard him shout. Ways in turn shouted to several men on the bank but when they got to Seaton he had sunk for the last time.

TALKED "SLUSH FUND" IN PULLMAN SMOKER.

Witness Tells Senate Committee What Lumberman Professed to Know About the Lorimer Deal Which Made Him U. S. Senator.

Called Press Telegram.
WASHINGTON, July 17.—Under the name of a "jackpot" the alleged $100,000 Lorimer slush fund brought up to day in the hearing before the Senate investigating committee when William M. Burgess, contractor of Duuth, testified that he, Rudolph, John and Carl Weyerhaeuser, C. F. Wiehe, secretary of the Illinois Lumber Company, and a traveling man from Connecticut, named Johnson, were fellow passengers in a smoker on the Winona Flyer on the evening of March 8, 1911. The party had dwindled until only Burgess, Johnson and Wiehe were left. Burgess said he did not know who Wiehe was at that time.

"I think the conversation drifted around to the election of Lorimer," he said. "When I said it was generally believed that Lorimer had spent a great deal of money in his election, Wiehe had spent a great deal of money in his election. Wiehe said: 'You don't know very d-d much about it. Lorimer did not spend any of his own money for his election, but a jackpot was raised for that purpose. I know what I am talking about because I submitted $10,000 to the pot, which Wiehe said amounted to $100,000."

Senator Kern, Dem. Ind., asked Burgess if he did not think it was remarkable that a man would talk to a stranger about having taken part in the bribery of the legislature.

"That is the peculiar part of it," replied Burgess. "That was why the conversation made such a strong impression upon my mind."

Book Is Splendidly Illustrated and With Easy and Correct Pronunciations—Goes With Subscriptions For the Daily Courier.

The most complete dictionary ever printed, containing a greater variety of carefully compiled and intelligently presented information than ever has been included in any like publication, is just off the press. It is called Webster's New Standard Dictionary, revised and brought up to date in accordance with the most recent eminent English and American authorities on spelling, pronunciation and definition. The work is designed to meet the popular demand for a convenient, complete and reliable dictionary.

This dictionary may be obtained by subscribers to The Daily Courier on presentation of six coupons printed in another part of the paper. By an arrangement with the publishers the book is offered free of charge, the only expense of the subscriber being the cost of packing, shipping and other small necessary expenses items.

The book may be called an encycloedia as well as a dictionary. It will make an exceedingly valuable addition to any library, especially in homes where there are children attending school. The pupil who has a knotty problem to unravel can find the solution here. The information and knowledge that is needed in everyday life are presented in a book of convenient size, which can be kept at the elbow for ready reference. For example there are 32 pages with illustrations in color, containing educational features such as the flags of all nations, poultry and birds of all varieties in their natural colors, costumes worn in the last 100 years down to the hobble skirt. Indeed, nothing appears to have been omitted.

The work contains all the words of the English language that are not peculiarly appropriate to a dictionary of technical terms. The spelling and pronunciation of plurals are given, and the use of capitals and small letters in writing every word in the language indicated. The book gives the past tense and participles of all verbs regularly formed by the addition of "d," "ed" and "ing." The pronunciation of each word is plainly indicated by phonetic spelling, and the definitions are presented in a most comprehensive yet concise, accurate and reliable manner.

As a kind of preface to the dictionary proper is a treatise on abbreviations of the parts of speech and their grammatical significance, and a discourse on the origin, composition and derivation of the English language. As a means of promoting the correctness of speech, both spoken and written, an analysis of the "Principles of Grammar" is given. The rules adopted by the Simplified Spelling Board are given under the head of "Simplified Spelling." These embrace 109 words spelled in two ways, of which the Board of Simplified Spelling recommends the simpler spelling. There is also a complete key to pronunciation which is invaluable to one who would speak the language properly.

Every new word recently coined and adopted by custom has been included. For example, the word "Osterville," taken from Professor Osler, who would chloroform people at the age of 45, when, according to his theory, they have outlived their usefulness. Also there are aviator and airplane and brainstorm and stovaine and taxied and equilibrator, all of which have recently come into use by stress of necessity.

The illustrations are the most complete, elaborate and expensive, that have ever appeared in a dictionary. They include colored and monotone plates and colored charts. Six hundred and fifty subjects are illustrated by the color plates, nearly fifty by the monotone and twenty-eight by the charts. The dictionary is printed on strong Bible paper from clear plates. An important feature is the large type. The dictionary contains a wonderful wealth of new ideas. It is a most valuable aid to a thorough mastery of the language.

If you would enrich your vocabulary, this is the book for you to get. It includes proverbs and colloquial expressions, foreign words and phrases, Christian names of men and women, the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, the metric system of weights and measures, the value of foreign coins in the United States, time differences all over the world, the electoral vote, the

Somerset Man Recovers Team

Special to The Courier.

SOMERSET, Pa., July 17.—Liveryman Frank W. Simpson this morning recovered his valuable team of black horses, stolen from him about two months ago by a man giving his name as E. Moore.

Moore hired the team for a short time; but failed to return. Simpson and the State Constabulary stationed at Somerset immediately instituted a search and Moore was traced to the eastern part of the state, where the trail was lost. On Saturday Simpson received word that his team was at New Castle, Pa. He at once started for New Castle and on his arrival there identified the team and returned home by train. William Pyle, an employee of Simpson, accompanied him on the trip and drove the team back, arriving here this morning.

William Ray of New Castle, is in jail there on a charge of horse-stealing. It turns out that he and Moore are accomplices. Ray was arrested in Somerset several years ago for horse stealing, convicted and sent to the penitentiary. He had disposed of one of Simpson's horses, leaving the other in the care of a farrier. Later, he stole a horse at Union City, for which he was arrested in New Castle.

Liverymen, apparently, have been the special victims of the pair. They posed as peddlers, hired an outfit and then forgot to return it.

Old Engineer Passes Through

It is a far cry from the Mallett articulated locomotive to the old Hammer Denny of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. This morning the Duquesne Limited, hauled by one of the big Pacific type of passenger engines, carried westward a veteran engineer who in 1858 sat at the throttle of the first locomotive on the old Pittsburgh & Connellsville railroad. It was Thomas Slocot, now an engineer on the Louisville & Nashville railroad, located at Louisville, Ky.

When Captain J. R. Porter collected the tickets upon leaving Cumberland shortly before 5 o'clock this morning he marked a resemblance between Slocot and someone he had seen many years ago. Later on the trip the two men started a conversation and became acquainted.

Mr. Slocot ran an engine out of Connellsville for two years. Superintendent Blackstone was in charge then and John McAuley was the master mechanic. Accompanied by his wife and daughter, the veteran engineer was en route home after a trip to New York.

"I would like to have stopped off in Connellsville for a time," he said this morning. "I can't do it. My time is about up and it is necessary for me to get back to Louisville as soon as possible."

MONDAY EVENING, JULY 17, 1911.

Free Butchers,
Washington, Ohio.

The legislature has made another effort to reach the free butchers who have been accustomed to mutilate and deform trees along the public highways.

It enacted a law for the protection of shade and fruit trees growing along streets or public roads, that doubles the fine to be imposed on those who injure them and provides for imprisonment.

It provides that anyone who shall
"wilfully cut, stone, cut, break, climb upon, injure, or destroy any shade tree or any fruit tree growing or standing any street, road or other place, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

Upon conviction before an Albermarle or Justice of the peace the offender "shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars, or to undergo imprisonment not exceeding five days, or both at the discretion of the justice."

This is a more drastic law than any which has been placed on the statute books heretofore for the protection of trees.

An act passed two years ago provided for a fine of five dollars but it was found that this penalty was not severe enough to deter the free butchers, especially those who work for public service corporations.

With a view of putting a stop to the outrageous work of these scoundrels the amount of the fine has been doubled and imprisonment provided for.

The new law makes all the public roads of Washington county will be convinced of the necessity of this law, for many instances will be seen of the ruthless work of unscrupulous employees of telephone companies who have mutilated many beautiful trees.

Desanding Labor Leaders.

Notable strike in the Irwin-Greenburg-Latrobe district began on April 1, 1910, is now only an unpleasant memory, the local unions having ratified the action of the executive committee of the United Mine Workers of America in their demand for a reduction of work hours from 10 to 8.

The Montana, recently returned from a winter at Quantum, with the marines went into reserve July, and is overhauled at the Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard. The Salem and Chester will go into reserve on Sept. 1.

The Tennessee will go into reserve for the summer overhauling.

When the Tennessee and Montana return to the division next fall, the Washington and the North Carolina will go into reserve for a month. The Montana is now being overhauled at Boston, and upon completion of this work, the Salem or the Chester will go into drydock.

WASHINGTON, July 17, 1911.
For the first time in history, exhaustive tests as to the consistency and adaptability of dirigibles and aeroplane in war will be held at Hampton Roads about the first of August. In conjunction with the naval maneuvers which will take place there, the navy will collect data on aerial warfare approaching in airmanship. For this pur-dismal experts, the crew armed with guns of the land and naval fortifications will be trained on these "attacking parties" and the officials will have some ground for judging just how much they would have to do to defend themselves, when an enemy is approaching in airmanship. For this pur-

SUCCESS CROWNS SCOTTDALE'S EFFORT

The $50,000 Y. M. C. A.
Building Fund is Reached at Last.

FIFTEEN MEN SAVED THE DAY

John B. Lott Was Visiting in Scottsdale—Good Shower Last Night. Frick Men Guests of Union Supply Company—Other Notes.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTTDALE, July 17.—At 8 o'clock on Saturday evening the hand of the great check on Pittsburgh street that for three weeks has shown the progress made from day to day in Scottdale's great campaign to raise a fund of $50,000 for the building of a new Y. M. C. A. home, was slowly moved up to 12 o'clock. The strenuous campaign was over and the fund saved to Scottdale just a few hours before the time limit on one of the biggest donations was about to expire. The great Saturday night crowd looked with wonder and pleasure up at the brilliantly lighted clock, with its red and white lights and speaking to each other drew attention to the fact that the Y. M. C. A. had won.

The closing up of the fund was brought about by the action of 15 public spirited men who each subscribed $100 additional to the subscriptions they had already made, to complete the fund. The situation was a desperate one and it looked as if failure was about to overtake the project when only $1,500 yet remained to be secured in pledges. Every avenue that was open had been sought out by members of the teams and it seemed well and these will be applied to the done. It meant much to Scottdale not alone from the physical and moral side of things, but from the business point of view. In the success of the project, since it would have been a distinct loss of prestige to the town had the fund failed of realization when $15,500 had been secured. The Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. passed formal resolutions that anything that may now come in in the shape of pledges is to be credited to the last 15 subscribers and shall reduce the responsibility of each pro rata. It may be that other subscriptions will now come in and it is expected that they will and these will be applied to the $1,500, to relieve the 15 men who guaranteed the fund. Their pledges are bona fide ones, but each one had been generous and had gone about to the limit of their giving already so that it would be manifestly unfair to cause them to assume such an extra burden with no compensation should other subscriptions come in. It is undoubtedly true that their action saved the fund. Scottdale is feeling mighty enthusiastic to-day in the anticipation of such a fine new building as is planned.

C. E. Fought, the State Y. M. C. A. man, who has headed the work and who has been under a great strain during its progress, accompanied by Mrs. Fought, left in the evening for Pittsburgh and from there will go to the woods for a period of recuperation. When another town demands his services in the same line, Mr. Fought has been in the Y. M. C. A. work for 23 years and is a genius along this line of raising building funds. He is under the employ of the State organization for this purpose, and has been in many similar campaigns all of which have been successful.

Struck by Tongue.

Blaine McFarland, an employee at the Scottdale plant of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company, was trying to pull apart a pair of tongs that locked when a sheet was being put through the rolls, suffered a severe injury on Friday. He had likewise a narrow escape from death, for the tongs refusing to open were thrown out of the rolls with terrific force, the handles catching him in the right shoulder and cutting through large and serious wound. It is generally believed by mill men that he should have jumped to one side of the rolls when he saw his tongs were locked to escape such an accident, but he believed that he could part the tongs before they would be pinched out. Had they struck him about the face or body he would have probably been killed.

John B. Lott Visiting.

John B. Lott, whom many of the people will remember as a former Scottdale business man, spent a few hours in Scottdale on Friday evening, the guest of Druggist S. A. Lowe. Mr. Lott is now a prosperous business man of Anderson, Indiana. He left Scottdale 23 years ago and coming back he was greatly surprised at the growth of the town. He said that Scottdale has much better business buildings than Anderson although the latter has a population of about 12,000, or twice as many as Scottdale.

Were on Trip.

W. H. Glengow and R. B. Barkell, of the Frick office force at Scottdale, went to Wheeling, W. Va., on Saturday with the automobile party, given by the Union Supply Company from Uniontown.

Welcome Shower.

There was a welcome shower fell at midnight last night, wetting down the country somewhat and reviving vegetation and crops. The need of rain is very great about this locality. The roads are deep with dust and every passing auto lifts choking clouds that may be seen for miles, outlining the course of a road.

Gone Camping.

Walace McCombe of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company's office force, left on Saturday for the Cheat river for a few days camping. He was to join Joseph T. Randle of the Old Meadow mill, who had been camping about eight miles above Cheat Haven.

F. M. OSBORNE DEAD.

Was First President of the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

CLEVELAND, July 17.—Francis M. Osborne, millionaire coal operator, died at 6 o'clock Sunday morning in St. Vincent's hospital, Toledo, O., after he had collapsed on a Lake Shore train. Osborne dropped unconscious in a Pullman drawing room at 11:30 o'clock Saturday night, three quarters of an hour after he had left Cleveland with his wife. He did not recover consciousness and a physician and ambulance met the train at Toledo. He was hurried to the hospital from the train. His death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage.

Osborne's death will affect a wide range of large commercial ventures, since, in addition to being one of the largest coal operators in the middle west, he was a banker, a heavy shareholder in many shipping enterprises on the Great Lakes and interested indirectly in the steel business. In the nineties he had begun to rank with the larger operators and in 1898, at a time when he was operating the West Newton, Pa., mines, he was instrumental in forming the merger known as the Pittsburgh Coal Company. He was first president of that company and served two years, until he resigned to form the $1,000,000 Youghiogheny & Ohio Coal Company, of which he was president.

At the time of his death Osborne was president of 12 corporations and director in nearly as many more. He was at the head of the Youghiogheny & Ohio Company, the Beaver Dam Coal Company, the Big Vene Coal Company, the E. N. Boggs' Coal Company, the Gileckitt Transportation Company, the Globe Steamship Company, the Lake Shore Transit Company, the Leland Coal Company, the Lorain Steamship Company and the Trumbull and Mahoning Water Company.

DIED OF BURNS.

Edna Carey Succumbed to Injuries on Saturday Night.

Edna May Carey, aged 10 years, 4 months and 15 days, daughter of Oliver and May D. Carey, died Saturday night at the family residence at South Connellsville, as the result of burns sustained Friday afternoon at her home. The child was removed to the Cottage State hospital where she was given the best of medical attention and everything possible was done to relieve the child of her sufferings. Seeing that death was near she was removed to her home Saturday afternoon where she died about eight hours afterwards. Coroner H. J. Bell was notified of the child's death. An inquest was not necessary.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 1 o'clock from her late home. Rev. R. C. Miller, pastor of the South Connellsville Evangelical church officiated. Interment in Hill Grove cemetery.

Tona Vita Fine for the Weary

In a recent interview one of the physicians who are introducing the remarkable new tonic "Tona Vita" to the American public, had this to say: "The manner of living in the large cities of the United States is such that perfect health is almost impossible; the human machine will not run true and strong day after day with its vitality continually being sapped by the constant nervous strain, irregular hours, hasty eaten food, the wear and tear and rush of city life, are largely responsible for the immense amount of dull, listless, half-sick people of the present generation. Debility or a 'run down' condition is called, in everywhere, but the people I see in street cars, restaurants, theaters, or on the street, are unmistakably in a debilitated condition, with their nerves in such a state that they either wish to lie down and rest or run after some excitement."

"Any one who has met a constant stream of nervous debilitated people as I have since I began my present work, can tell a man or woman in this condition at a glance. I wish to emphatically state that the number of debilitated people in the larger American cities is appalling.

"Tona Vita," the medicine I am helping to introduce, is to combat this condition, I believe it to be the best preparation ever before sold to the public, in that it is immediately effective in cases of debility and other troubles that go hand in hand with this disease."

You can not hope to enjoy life or meet with much success if you are tired all the time, have little ambition, and feel continually depressed in mind and body. Every half-sick, worn-out man or woman, owes it to themselves and their family, to try "Tona Vita." If the tonic does not make life more worth living, and brings back the healthy, energetic spirit, that is now lacking, the price is refunded. A. A. Clarke has the agency for "Tona Vita" in Connellsville; also for Lee's Rhubarb Laxative, the purest and best family laxative on the market. Lee's Rhubarb Laxative will not injure the most delicate constitution. It is ideal for children.

A ROMANCE

CHAPTER I.

A gentleman who, leaving his office at lower Broadway a trifle after four, presently ensconced himself in a corner seat of a Subway express and opened before him a damp afternoon paper (with an eye for the market reports) was surprised, when the train crashed heavily into the Fourteenth Street station, to find himself afoot and marking for the door; this although his intention had been to alight at Grand Central. Thus it may be, that trickster in us all, which we are accustomed vaguely to dominate the subconscious mind, directed our actions to an end predetermined.

Surprised, he hesitated; and for that was rewarded by having his heels trodden by the passenger behind. This decided him, absurdly enough, and he went in and out, sealing himself with a muttered something, hardly definite, about a stroll benefiting him. So, transferring to a local train, he alighted at Twenty-third Street, climbed the stairs and proceeded briskly west, buffeted by a rowdy wind.

Striking diagonally across Madison Square Park, past the drearily jutting fountains and between arrays of empty benches scarcely beggarly (since that class had deserted them for warmer lounging places) he turned northward on Fifth Avenue, threading the early evening throngs with a spring of impatience in his stride to distance casual competition; and received upon a mind still impressionable, for all that it had ample food for meditation and nursed a private grievance, a variety of pleasurable suggestions.

Dusk, the early violet dusk of late November, brooded over the city, blurring its harsh contours, subduing its too blatant youth, lending an illusion resembling the dim enchantment of antiquity.

Near Twenty-ninth Street he checked sharply and stood briefly debating something suggested by sight of a shop window well known to him:

"It might save time; one may as well be sure—"

Turning, he descended a pair of stone steps and crossed a flagged area to a door set at one side of a window dressed with a confusion of odd, enticing things: a display that tempted the eye with the colors of the rainbow fainting under weight of years and dust. A bell tinkled overhead as he opened and shut the door, letting himself into a deep and narrow room crowded with a heterogeneous assemblage of objects that glimmered with weird splendor in a semi-gloom made visible by half a dozen electric bulbs generously spaced. In the rear, beyond a partitioning screen, shone a warmer light.

For the moment he saw no one. Advancing a few paces he halted, waiting.

From behind the screen, at the back of the shop, the proprietor appeared, soft stepping, smiling to greet a good customer of discerning taste. The latter went to meet him with a pleasant air of liking.

"Good evening, Mr. Miller."

"Good evening, Mr. Coast. Something I can show you this evening?"

"The telephone, if you please," Coast laughed a little and was answered cheerfully.

"Certainly. This way."

He was conducted behind the screen, where, beneath a strong light, an assistant at a jeweler's bench sat laboriously occupied with some task of delicate artifice. He looked up as Coast entered, with a greeting cordially returned. Coast went directly to the telephone, a wall instrument, unhooked the receiver and detailed a number to Central. The proprietor disappeared into an adjoining room. An instant later Coast spoke again.

"That you, Soames? This is Mr. Coast. Is Miss Katherine at home?"

"Then will you and me out, please. Ask her if she has time to see me for a few moments before dinner. . . . Very well."

There was a lengthening pause, during which the antique dealer silently returned, his gentle eye alternating between Coast and a crystal decanter he had fastened.

"Yes, Central, waiting." Coast put his hand over the transmitter and wagged a reproving head. "Going to try to poison me, Miller!"

"Just a drop of old brandy, Mr. Coast—very old, from my home in France."

Coast nodded, recalled to the telephone. "Hello, Soames. . . . Very well. Tell her I called, please. . . . No! no message, thank you. Goodby."

As he hung up the receiver, a warning chime intimation sounded at the front door. Miller, busy with glasses, looked to his assistant. "See who that is, Charlie," he said. The assistant slipped from his seat, switched on more light in the front of the shop, and vanished round the screen.

As he did so, Coast heard the rumble of a man's voice, followed by a woman's ringing laugh, a thought too loud.

Miller was offering him a glass. He bowed, took it and held it to his lips for a moment without tasting, then glanced at the corner of an eye he detected the uplifted salutant two fingers of the driver of a town-car at halt in the outer line of north-bound traffic. In the window of a car a white glove fluttered, moth-like. Beside the door, with a hand on the lower window, he spoke through the lowered window.

"You'll tell me why?"

Her composure was sobering. He got himself more in hand; he was not to be moved by stumping ho-

"Indeed you may. Didn't I call you, Garrett?"

"Good of you. I am fortunate. I've been wanting to see you."

He got in and shut the door at the moment when, by the grace of the omnipotent policeman, motion became again permissible. The racking motor quieted into purring: the car slipped forward, gaining momentum. Outside, a swarm, swirled round and past like noisy fireflies. He ignored them all, blessing his happy chance. Katherine Thaxter in her corner had a smile for him, dainty to be detected through the gloom whirling her face glimmered like some wan flower of the night, beautiful, fragrant, mysterious.

"Where were you going, Garrett?"

"Oh . . . I . . ." He emerged from reverie with a little start at the sound of her voice. "No place in particular. I believe I had some hazy notion of the club when you called me. And you? Home, of course."

"Yes. I've been shopping."

"Tired?"

"Not very. . . . Curious I should have been thinking of you just when the car stopped."

"I don't agree: it was telepathy."

"Oh, that's overworked, Garrett. Can't a commonplace coincidence be explained any other way nowadays?"

"Perhaps; but not this time. I've been thinking about you all day. Some impulse—I don't know what—moved me to walk up from Twenty-third Street and dash insignificant in themselves brought me to that corner just in time. That isn't coincidence: it's—" He sought the word.

"What do you think?"

"Prostitution—another name for luck."

"You're ingenuous."

"Grateful, rather."

She laughed, a gentle laugh that faded in a sigh, and after a moment of anticipative silence, almost apprehensive, felt obliged to ask: "What were you thinking about me, Garrett?"

"Much the usual thing, I'm afraid—"

"Oh, Garrett!" Her voice was rueful though she laughed. "Again?"

"I'm a persistent beggar, you know, Katherine. . . . But otherwise, also, I happened to hear your name mentioned today . . . gossip . . . an idle rumor . . ."

He felt her eyes upon him, seriously sweet and questioning, and frowned slightly, wishing he had held his tongue, though aware that he could not have, caring the way he did.

"Why not tell me? I'm waiting, Garrett."

"Well . . . It was difficult: an impertinence; incredible, besides. But now that he had committed himself, he suffered a resolve and plunged. "It was said that your engagement to this man Blackstock would be announced before long."

That cut bluntly, he caught a long breath and, divided between fear and faith, sat watching her.

The seconds of her silence spun for an hour of anguish.

"Katherine. . . ."

She turned. "Yes?"

"Have you nothing to say?" he asked involuntarily, and at once regretted it.

"What do you wish me to say?" Her tone was dull, as if she spoke mechanically, with a mind detached.

"Either arm or dry. You owe me that, at least."

"Do it!" She seemed surprised.

"I'm a Persistent Beggar, You Know, Katherine."

"But what?" she pursued, rousing "does this man Blackstock?"

"You know I don't like him, Katherine. I can't."

"But I can and do, Garrett."

There was simplicity in that almost confessional. His heart beat rapidly, warmed his grievance until it turned writhing in his bosom and stung him like an adder. So that was the man! . . . He pressed forward more rapidly, but now in an introspective mood, oblivious of all that so recently had gratified him.

At Fortieth Street he pulled up on the southern corner, over across from the dull grey colonnade of the new Public Library, awaiting a break in the stream of traffic.

A policeman presently made way for him, holding back the press of vehicles to permit a string of their counterparts to break through. Coast stopped down from the curb and in another minute would have been across, but stopped in mid-stride to hear himself named in a voice unforgetable, to him inexplicably sweet.

Startled, he halted beneath the noses of a pair of handsome horses champing in taut-reined restraint, and glanced at random right and left. Then again he was called—"Garrett! Garrett! Coast"—out of the corner of an eye he detected the uplifted salutant two fingers of the driver of a town-car at halt in the outer line of north-bound traffic. In the window of the car a white glove fluttered, moth-like.

"I'm trying to be sure, Garrett, before I tell him so—or you."

"But—but you mustn't! . . . The thing's impossible. . . . You!"

"You'll tell me why?"

Her composure was sobering. He got himself more in hand; he was not to be moved by stumping ho-

CHANGE IN WOMAN'S LIFE

Made Safe by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

GRANITEVILLE, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life suffering from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forgot to tell everyone how safe and effective Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—Mrs. CHARLIE BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ill has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cure as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 20 years it has been curing woman's ills such as inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free and always helpful.

DR. BARNES, Medical, Allopathic, Homeopathic Specialist.

MONONGAHELA, July 17.—Two dogs of beer caused bloodshed in two fights in this county Saturday night and may result in the death of one man. The injured:

Peter Ull, West Columbia, near here, shot in left shoulder, condition serious; at Memorial hospital. Egert Dubro, West Columbia, cut in four places, hand nearly cut off; in emergency ward at police station, under arrest. Alexander Kisch, Monongahela; cut in face, breast and body; at Memorial hospital; may die.

Ull and Dubro, it is said, at the boarding house of John Gollik at West Columbia, quarreled over a keg of beer Joseph Lipnick, who is being held for court without bail charged with cutting Kisch. It is said to have also had a quarrel with the latter over another keg.
